

Bryan E. Miller – Biography (Jul 2020)

Bryan Miller is married to his wonderful wife Susan and will be celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary this coming December. He graduated from Sheridan High School in 1984 and from the U.S. Air Force Academy in 1988. He became a tanker pilot and served nearly 23 years on active duty before returning to his hometown of Sheridan. He is the owner and CEO of BEM Int'l, LLC, a Veteran Owned Small Business (SDVSOB) established in the Great State of Wyoming. BEM Int'l works with Sandia National Laboratories supporting research and development projects and was hired for his exceptional knowledge in navigating federal, state, and interagency organizations.

Bryan consults, facilitates, and is a key team member of the Wind Turbine Radar Interference Mitigation (WTRIM) Working Group. This program and its predecessor integrate multi-year, multi-event, joint Defense (DOD), Energy (DOE), Homeland Security (DHS), Transportation (DOT/FAA), Commerce (DOC/NOAA/IOOS), Interior (DOI/BOEM), and National Laboratory, programs together evaluating and maturing promising mitigation capabilities, siting tools, and databases.

Upon retiring from the military in February 2011, Bryan continued supporting the White House Interagency Policy Committee Task Force drafting the executive level report, "Impacts of Wind Turbines on Electromagnetic Sensing and Communications Capabilities," thru report outbrief in May 2011. Before retiring from the U.S. Air Force, Lieutenant Colonel Miller was the first Chief of the newly formed of Energy, Urban Development and Aerospace Surveillance Capabilities De-Confliction Branch at the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), at Peterson AFB, CO. As the command's lead, he and his team supported DOD and White House radar interference/obstruction mitigation efforts balancing defense requirements and national energy needs. While at NORAD, as the Chief of the Aerospace Warning Branch, Bryan managed NORAD's bi-national radar infrastructure mission, led multi-command teams in mitigation/mediation discussions regarding commercial developments near national airspace and radar assets. He was also hand-picked for the initial team brought in to stand up U.S. Northern Command after the 9-11 terrorist attacks where as a joint strategy and planning division team member, created the plans for integrating the mission of the new Department of Homeland Security with the military's Homeland Defense mission.

For more than two decades, Bryan drafted and presented interagency level briefings, participated as a speaker or panel member, and served on national level subcommittees and teams. Examples include: 1) As field agent and Chief of Presidential Flight Support for Air Force One, briefed state, federal, and international government and military officials on White House travel activities (1998-2002), 2) Coordinated joint civil and military operations to prevent credible terrorist and riotous protest activities for two National Political Conventions (2004), 3) Speaker/panel member for: the multi-agency Air Domain Awareness and DOD/DHS Radar Conferences (2009-2015), the Multifunction-phased Array Radar Symposium and the High Altitude and Near Space (HAaNS) Conference (2009), the Asia Pacific Clean Energy Summit & Expo and the Texas TOWER Conference (2012), panelist for Sustaining Military Readiness Conferences, planned and facilitated the Travis AFB, CA Pilot Mitigation Project studying infill radar integration into the FAA's command and control management system (2018-2020), supported multiple Wyoming Infrastructure Authority Conferences, Congressional Delegation visits to Wyoming, and routinely testified before national legislative staff and Wyoming Legislative Committees, City Councils, etc..

Bryan earned his Command Pilot Wings flying over 2,500 hours in multiple aircraft and major weapons systems. He served as an Operations Officer and Squadron Commander for a special airlift missions VIP support squadron. He is a combat veteran going back to Desert Storm flying a combined 58 combat and combat support air refueling missions across three military campaigns. Bryan's aviation experience spans multiple mission areas including extensive world-wide air refueling operations, Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty international monitoring and enforcement missions, combat force training, civil support and disaster relief operations, and years of special air mission's expertise.

Bryan is a 1988 U.S. Air Force Academy graduate with a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology. He has since earned two advanced degrees, a Master's of Aeronautical Science (MAS) Degree / Embry Riddle Aeronautical University, FL and a Master of Military Operational Art and Science Degree / Air University, Maxwell AFB, AL. Bryan's last security clearance renewal was completed in 2019.
